The Art Gallery of Ontario's Extension Services

MARGO STREET

Circulating Exhibitions

Ms. Street is a communications assistant at the Art Gallery of Ontario. In recent years the Art Gallery of Ontario has emerged as a major provincial resource whose services extend far beyond Metropolitan Toronto. This began initially in 1966 when an Act of the Provincial Parliament changed the name from the Art Gallery of Toronto to the Art Gallery of Ontario. Since then the significance of the new name has become more and more pronounced.

One of the major factors in the shift in emphasis is the assistance offered by the Gallery's Extension Services to galleries, libraries, recreational centres and educational institutions throughout the province. Last year 38 exhibitions travelled to 85 communities for a total of 228 bookings.

A wide and versatile program is planned every year, keeping in mind the specific needs of exhibiting centres. There are some very large exhibitions, and many modest ones that can be adapted to suit the more limited exhibition spaces. The selection includes straightforward, two-dimensional shows like Tibetan Prints and Water Colours by John Bennett, and multi-media displays like Chairs, Patchwork Quilts and Wrought Iron: European Household Utensils from the 17th to the 19th Century.

The Gallery will help new centres by sending Extension Officers to assess proposed exhibition space. They can suggest ways to improve hanging systems and security controls and give instructions on how to handle works of art. Many centres have expanded and improved their facilities in order to accommodate these travelling shows. The Belleville Public Library, for example, began with very modest facilities, which have improved so much over the years that in 1974 they were able to take a major Emily Carr exhibition.

Occasionally, shows like Eisenstein Drawings: From Theatre to Film spotlight more than one discipline. The 80 facsimile drawings by the famous Russian filmmaker illuminate his precise insight into theatrical design and characterization. Also represented are his youthful reminiscences of 1917, satirical visual impressions of travels in Mexico, and graphic realizations of scenes from his last epic film, Ivan the Terrible. Accompanying the show is a well documented catalogue and thr
